About AORA INDIA

Regional anaesthesia plays a pivotal role in the daily routine of an anaesthesiologist. It must be systematically learned and taught to ensure that it no longer remains a skill limited to a few individuals. It is a scientific discipline that can be perfected through structured education and continuous practice. This science can advance through research, with its ultimate goal being to enhance patient care. The establishment of the “Academy Of Regional Anaesthesia” in India is a testament to this vision.

AORA INDIA has steadily grown since its inception in 2011 and now boasts over 2,075 active members, all of whom strongly believe in the clinical and economic advantages of regional anaesthesia as an integral part of a multimodal analgesia approach. The widespread availability of high-resolution ultrasound machines has opened up new possibilities through Point-of-Care Ultrasound (POCUS), further expanding the capabilities of anesthesiologists to provide comprehensive patient care.

AORA is committed to offering regular educational courses, setting up training centers, and disseminating knowledge to those eager to learn. Under the AORA banner, individuals with an unwavering passion for learning and teaching regional anaesthesia can connect, grow, and deliver the best possible care to patients, regardless of their geographical location or available infrastructure.
